Continue

>>_ "See you at Tim Hortons at 2:00." I'm an American living in Italy, and I just got a call from a Frenchman re: a summer rental in Sardinia. I suspected that his address was not "xyz@arubas.live.fr"... "@" in Italian is "chiocciola", which of course in French is "escargot" (imagine my flummoxed consternation Thanks to all for the great forum thread
>>_>_>_