The offline installer has a file size of 624.52 MB for the 32-bit version, while its 64-bit counterpart is 702.91 MB big. If you plan to install add-ons, Microsoft suggests going with the 32-bit version due to compatibility issues. Meanwhile, the offline installer comes with some limitations: It can't handle multiple Office versions at once, so you'll have to uninstall any existing Office installations (like Office 2010 or Office 2007) before installing Office 2013. Also, it doesn't support fast streaming. Feature-wise, if those don't bother you, here's how to get the installer: First off, head over to TechNet Evaluation Center and scroll down to find the link that says "Download the .msi package now". Sign in, fill out the form, and click Continue. On the next page, you'll get your Office 2013 product key; save it for later. Then select your preferred language, choose between 32-bit or 64-bit versions, and hit download. Update: It appears direct links are no longer working. Instead, try these ones: Direct Links Below are the links to the 32-bit and 64-bit versions, but don't forget you'll still need to sign up on Technet for a product key. 32-bit: slower connections, consider using a download manager; the link is resumable so you don't have to worry about interrupted downloads. Office 2013 System Requirements CPU and processor: x86/x64 Processor with SSE2 instruction set Minimum RAM: 1 GB (32-bit) / 2 GB (64-bit) Free disk space: at least 3.5 GB required Graphics card: DirectX 10 graphics card, resolution of 1024 x 576 Operating System: either Windows 7 or Windows 8
