A fierce and humongous monkey, the Sekiro Guardian Ape is the final boss of the Sunken Valley area. advertisement The Sekiro Guardian Ape Location Sunken Valley Deathblows to defeat 2 Drops Memory: Guardian Ape, Slender Finger Weakness None A massive white monkey with a large katana sticking through its neck, Guardian Ape lies at the end of the Sunken Valley. Be sure to bring some Pacifying Agent for the second stage of this boss fight. You'll find him just after the Bodhisvatta Valley Sculptor's Idol. This ape is a measured test of endurance. It's health bar is huge and he attacks you with devastating force. You'll need some practice learning his moveset and mastering it to truly take him out, especially in phase 1 to save your healing gourd for Phase 2. advertisementVideo Guide - Guardian Ape Boss FightIn Phase 1 the Guardian Ape will circle around you waiting for the opportune moment to strike. At times he'll retreat back and you'll see a grapple logo appear above his head. Snag onto it and you'll be able to perform a flip attack on his head. Do enough damage to the ape throughout the fight and he'll stagger, allowing you to do several more chunks of damage before he'll retreat for a bit and then will keep attacking. Here's the attacks to look out for: Attacks: Right arm sweep attack. Guardian Ape will swipe left then right with its right arm before plopping on its butt. This attack can also be followed up with him turning around with two slams of his left arm and a final right arm sweep. However this doesn't occur every time so watch to see if you can punish him while he's sitting.Poop fling. You'll see the Guardian Ape retreat back a fair amount and reach behind him (you know where) He'll then fling a large piece of feces at you that deals poison damage along with a large chunk of vitality damage as well.Run straight at the Guardian Ape when he does this attack, you won't get hit and you'll have a chance to punish him.Ambush strike. As he's circling Guardian Ape can rush in for a single blow to try to catch you off guard.Double attack - Jump - Slam. this attack also leave the Ape open for some punishment. He'll swing with his left arm, then his right, spin and slam his right arm again. He'll then jump in the air and slam both arms down on you. If you can block all these attacks, his head is open for some damage at the end.Unblockable Attacks: A sweeping grab from left to right, jump above this to avoid it.Run and jump attack. This attack is harder to avoid and does devastating damage, Guardian Ape will run up and jump in the air towards you making your hitbox to get away very small. Dodge through this attack and to the left under his right arm to avoid it.advertisementAfter finally depleting all of his health and getting the deathblow by using the sword in his neck to chop off his head, you may think the fight is over. All remains still but you can't leave the arena? Suddenly his beheaded body gets up and grabs both the sword and his severed head. WHAT?! So now that the monkey is attacking you headless with a sword how should you approach it? The first thing you'll need to know is that he can still scream through his head, quickly filling your Terror buildup. Should it reach max capacity, you're dead. Period. So if you see him raising his head to his neck, and the unblockable symbol appear, RUN. His attacks are much more floaty now, and he moves with an unnatural step, which in stark contrast to the previous phase makes him unnerving. Hold your ground, and take your time striking when you can. Often if you block enough of the Guardian Ape's attacks, he will retaliate with a long hard slam attack, which you can avoid and punish for a few hits as well. Attacks: Belly Slide Swing. You can actually cheese the boss a bit with this attack. Run around and wait for him to do it, then jump over the attack and deal a few swings of damage at the corpse. He'll often follow up with a Head Shriek so have that sprint button at the ready.Flow Stab. This attack has four stabs of his sword thrown at you with off-timing to make them harder to block.Two Swing- A back and forth swing of the sword.Quick Tri-SwingPerilous Attacks: advertisementHead Shriek. Guardian Ape will bring its severed head to its neck releasing a blood curdling shriek that does Terror buildup.Left to right sweep. A long sweep of his sword, you can jump over this attack.Jump sweep. He will jump into the air, and perform a long sweep attack as he hits the ground. Back up and just avoid this one if you can. It's not worth taking the damage it deals.Was this guide helpful?In This Wiki GuideCheck out the thrilling, action-packed new trailer for Prey, the newest entry in the Predator franchise. Be sure to check out our other Sekiro: Shadows Die Twice Boss Encounter guides here. Let's get one thing out of the way. This fight is a huge pain in the ass. The Guardian Ape is basically a wall in Sekiro: Shadows Die Twice that you simply have to get past. Otherwise, you might as well put down the controller or keyboard and mouse. He's fast, he's strong, he ignores must interruptions and he can pull out his perilous attack at moment's notice. But he's not unbeatable, he's just damned tough. Once you get to the point where you need to take on the Guardian Ape, you should already have at least upgraded your Healing Gourd 6 or 7 times by now. You'll want as many heals as you can have for this fight. Having a few Pellets won't hurt either. Having the Shinobi Firecracker is also recommended as you can use this to interrupt his attacks. The Ashina Arts Skill, Double Ichimonji, is also very useful in this fight. Bring some Antidotes for the first phase and Pacifying Agents for the second phase. Guardian Ape Phase 1 He has two perilous attacks, a frontal swiping attack that will grab you, causing massive damage, and then sending you launching. You can safely get away from this by jumping the second you see the red kanji appear. He'll whiff the attack, allowing you free hits. The second is a rolling attack that he'll jump towards you try to grab you. He'll only do this one if you're at a distance, so if you stay close you can ensure he doesn't use it on you. During the fight, he'll also attempt to fart on you and toss feces (he is an Ape after all) that will do poison damage. Watch out for when he tosses the feces, as it also does damage. The fart attack can come out randomly, while the feces attack can only occur when he jumps in the air (1:26). You'll definitely see it coming. Either dodge or hook onto a tree to escape it. If you do manage to dodge it, the boss will be stunned for a few seconds as it nurses its sore bum. Wack him a few times and get out. He'll also throw a tantrum at times (1:04), either rolling on the ground or swinging his arms. Or running around swinging his arms wildly and pounding the ground. Either block or deflect these attacks or move away if you are low on health. He's susceptible to being stunned during this as well. If you manage to stun him with the Shinobi Firecracker and you are standing in front of him, move to the rear. He will belly flop on you if you do. He also has a nasty habit of turning with you (1:33). Even when he's stunned, so don't stop to attack until he's on the ground. Yes, that's a bit cheat on his end. The Ashina Arts Skill, Double Ichimonji (1:09), can hit him out of just about any attack and adds a lot of posture damage. With this skill, you can stun him, and follow up with another attack, and then repeat. This will dish out a lot of posture damage. The remainder of the fight is just trying to block/parry or trying to damage him. As long as you watch out for the attacks I mentioned, you'll get past this in no time. I found that playing aggressively works out better for this phase. Perform the Deathblow when it's available Guardian Ape Phase 2 Once you kill the boss the first time, he'll come back to life, pick up his head as nothing happened, and wield the same weapon you used to kill him with. He also swaps out his perilous attacks with two new ones. An AOE Terror attack that can kill you quickly. This attack is telegraphed, giving you time to get away from it. The moment you see him raise his severed head onto his shoulders, RUN! Don't dodge, just run out! (3:11) Pop a Pacifying Agent to help reduce the amount of terror that might have stacked up. The other attack is also telegraphed, and you'll see him jump up into the sky. He'll land where you're standing, so move out of the way (2:21). Don't waste your time using the Shinobi Firecracker on this phase. It will no longer work. Other than this, the tantrum attack is also present. However, it's more dangerous as his reach is increased with the sword he now holds. He'll approach you swinging wildly, just not with much precision. These can be easily avoided by running out. The main concern is due to the increased reach. Thankfully, the swings are much slower and you can easily block or deflect them. Managing to deflect them will cause the Guardian Ape's posture meter to build up quickly. This phase is about being patient and keeping your distance. If you rush in, he could easily trap you and kill you with his damaging attacks or the terror. Get in, attack, then back out. Repeat until the Deathblow is ready. There, that wasn't so bad, was it? You can watch the entire fight in the video above. Be sure to check out our other Sekiro: Shadows Die Twice Boss Encounter guides here. Related
