A woman is tied to a pole and we see evidence that she was beaten (she has a bloody lip). Women use low cut dresses that reveal cleavage, and belly dancers use short and low cut tops that reveal cleavage and bare abdams. Two warriors fight cutting and pulsing one in the other, one is stabbed through abdomen, one is cut into the leg, one is stabbed on the shoulder, then through the chest (he spits blood). And he falls on the ground: He is then tied around the ankles to a carriage and is dragged by a great distance (we see the body jumping along the floor and later with blood and sand on his torn face). And you will be helping to support our website and our efforts. To a certain point, this content is guaranteed so that we can understand the complexities of your character, but the nudity unnecessary male and female rear adds to the reasons why this film is in the field R. Our classifications and comment Rivers are based on film versions launched in theaters; In Veho, many times are not classified, special director's cut or extended, (usually labeled with precision, but sometimes with labeling errors) released that contain additional contents, which we do not analyze. A man and a woman look admirably. Men are visible barefoot in many scenes and men are shown using the short kilts that expose the naked legs - and we see the underwear under the kilts several times. Starry by Diane Kruger, Brendan Gleeson, Orlando Bloom, Violatory / Gore 8 - Huge Exchange Load each other. Archers begin to shoot arrows in the enemy, men shake with swords and spits, and we see many sliced men, launched and stabbed men, with bloodcross and spraying. (2-42) Sex / Nudity 6-8 a man caresses the face and neck of a woman (she is married to another man) She disappeared the face of her dress and fall into the ground (we see shallow shoulders and cleavage), they kiss passionately, and she lies naked on a bed (we see her back and bare buttocks and it's not funny, retname a raduga son edop "Acov. 7791 ededs aidAm ed sairts" Adni sair! A man grabs a woman by the hair, then holds her by the throat threatening her and she stabs him in the neck (he falls down dead and we see the bloody wound). Directed by Wolfgang Petersen. Many other men are struck by arrows, we see many bodies on the ground and horses and men trample on them. But there is one in the crowd whose reputation precedes him. A man cuts off the head of a statue. History recalls kings and not soldiers. Focusing on the battle between the Trojans and the Greeks, written in Homer's Iliad, the film begins with Paris (Orlando Bloom), the Prince of Troy, convincing the Queen of Sparta (Diane Kruger) to board her boat and return to her home. But his brother, King Agamemnon, finds a terrible opportunity in the destructive decision of the young lady. Many bodies are scattered across a field in various scenes. Two men play with wooden swords. A woman is pushed and thrown forward and thrown away between drunken men, a man punches her in the face (we see her bloody nose), they hold a warm red mark close to her arm, and another man grabs the mark and burns the first man on the neck. A man talks about what happens after a military occupation: babies are thrown off cliffs, women are taken as slaves. Unfortunately, much buzz has been driven by the anticipation of seeing Brad Pitt almost naked (an ostentatious marketing ploy to attract female viewers), and is not being allowed to speak enough to the amazing supporting cast in this film (nor are we more sympathetic to why Brad has a sly English accent).
