How to Use Mi Unlock Tool to Unlock the bootloader on Aiaomi/Redmi device using the Mi Unlock Tool. We will follow a three-step approach towards the bootloader unlocking rocess so that it's easier for you to understand how it works. In brief: The first step is to bind your Mi account to your Xiaomi device to verify that the particular device has the required permissions. The third and final step is to launch the Mi Unlock Tool on your PC and use it to unlock your phone's bootloader. Make sure that you follow the instructions once before you start performing them. Step 1: Enable OEM Unlocking on your Xiaomi Device 'OEM Unlocking' is basically a switch that's hidden within the settings menu of your phone. In order to unlock the bootloader, this switch must be enabled first. To enable OEM unlocking: Go to 'Settings' > 'About phone' on your phone. Scroll down and find the 'MIUI Version' section. Continuously tap on the MIUI version 5 (five) times to enable the hidden 'Developer options' on your Xiaomi phone. You should see the 'You're now a developer!' message on the screen. Go to 'Settings' > 'Additional settings' > 'Additional settings' > 'Developer options'. Find the 'OEM Unlocking' option and turn on the toggle right next to it. Tap on 'Enable' when prompted to finally enable OEM Unlocking on your Xiaomi phone. Step 2: Bind your Mi Account to your Xiaomi Device Applying for bootloader unlocking permissions isn't required anymore, but you still need to bind your Mi account to your Xiaomi phone in order to unlock the bootloader. This could be done via the 'Mi Unlock Status' menu within 'Developer options'. First, make sure that you have a Mi account. If you do not have one yet, you can sign up for it on the official page. Second, make sure that you have your SIM card inserted in the phone and it should be the same phone from the WiFi and enable the carrier mobile data. All three of these things are mandatory for successfully binding your Mi account. Once set, go to 'Settings' > 'Additional settings' > 'Mi Unlock Status' on your phone. Tap on 'Add account by following the on-screen instructions. Once the account has been successfully added, you should see 'Added successfully. Mi account is associated with this device now.' toast notification on your phone into Fastboot Mode by simultaneously holding the Volume Down and Power buttons together. You should see the Fastboot screen with Mi bunny mascot figure. Connect your PC using 7Zip or any other archive utility. Launch the unlock tool on your PC by double-clicking the extracted 'miflash unlock.exe' executable file. Log into your Mi account in the tool's GUI. The tool will verify whether your Mi account has been correctly bound to the connected messages at this stage, please refer to the common error messages listed towards the bottom of this page. Click on the 'Unlock' button in the Mi Unlock Tool window. Select 'Unlock anyway' when prompted to finally unlock the bootloader of your Xiaomi device. The progress of the unlocking process will be shown in the tool's GUI. During this process, all the data on your phone will also be erased. Once finished, you should see the 'Unlocked successfully' message on the screen during the initial phase of the booting process. Don't worry, it is normal. Once your phone boots, follow the on-screen instructions to set up your device and log into your Google/Mi account. Common Mi Unlock Tool Errors and How to Fix Them Error Message How to Fix Not connected to the phone over fastboot mode. This is generally caused due to missing drivers. So make sure that you have the latest Xiaomi ADB/Fastboot USB Drivers installed on the PC and retry. Current account is not bound to this device The message will show up if your Mi account is not properly associated with your phone. To fix this, reboot your phone back into the OS and refollow the instructions from Step #2 above. Couldn't unlock. After 720/360/168/72 hours of trying to unlock the device It's highly unlikely to get this message. But in case you do, make sure to wait for the mentioned time period and then try unlocking the bootloader again. Note: Do not log out/remove your Mi account or perform a factory reset on your Poco X2 during this waiting period. Doing so will reset the wait timer and you might have to wait for the unlocking permissions for even longer. Voila!
