That's the beauty of songs that they can reach people in different ways. I try to put in the situation of a guy. In my opinion, he has such ideas about how he wants his life to look. He has dreams and goals, but no one notices them. No one sees reality. Maybe he did something in the past that he feels guilty about and it gave him a reputation and everything that people see and want people to see him for who he is. Sometimes we can feel like people see us and see us, in his case, behind his blue eyes. But everyone interprets it differently. II Highest Rated Interpretation: Anonymous 2010 April 7 Report The song "Behind Blue Eyes" was originally part of Pete Townshend's "Life Home Project," which was shelved. Of course, most of this discontinued project would be on the Who's Next album, including this song. It is written from the point of view of the "bad guys" character (of the story, which undermines the "residential design of the house"), showing that even bad people have emotions like us. "Behind Blue Eyes" refers to the villain's thoughts and feelings in his head, behind his eyes. As with any song text, how it is interpreted is up to you or may have special meaning to you and that is fine. However, the intended meaning of the lyrics of the author when writing the song is above. It's not about Nazis, being gay or drugs. A long time ago I read that the villain figure and text was inspired by an executive director (who Pete probably didn't think too much about), but when he read the text he was surprised that the text reminded him as much as the record director. #3 Top RatedGHMD56 October 18, 2010 This song can be applied to a narcissistic face. They don't have a conscience (...my dreams aren't so empty because it seems like my conscience...) can't maintain a relationship (...I have hours, only lonely. My love is revenge that she is never ever free...). Narcissists are experts in "projection", i.e. they died of other people (...feel those feelings and I blame you...). They are excellent liars (...to tell only lies...). These people have an inflated sense of grandeur and expectations, but some of them sometimes have a deep sense that they hate! Anonymous post on Aug 1, 2021 matches my childhood, when the song was released I used the leader of the adult organization. It was hell, but I made it through the 70s. I gave up on success, but I fought those demons all my life. Now I finally learn to play the singing guitar and sing this song, when I learned the song, I opened a pandorus box for me. I cry and now I deal with my place stored in my head and I come out of this experience. Now I can face the world and tell my story with this song. Thanks Peter Anonymous, November 14, 2020. My interpretation is that people with blue eyes also experience pain. Blue eyed people are always easy and we make mistakes, we live crazy lives, they are sorry, they are sad, they are happy, they have feelings for others and can be very nice people. Just because we don't have blue eyes doesn't mean we're privileged, environments or prejudiced. We can be very caring people, have problems, and take care of others and ourselves. Bedroom! An anonymous report from May 28, 2020 is of a narcissist expressing his feelings: 'But my dreams are not so empty as my conscience seems to be' anonymous April 1924.; He knows he is a bad person, behind those blue eyes, who is somehow unwittingly destined to tell only lies (though he knows very deeply that he is bad - he has a bad conscience); no one no one knows what it's like to be a bad man to be a blue eyed sad man no one knows what it's like to hate to be doomed only to lies but my dreams aren't as empty as my conscience c is a lonely man who reacts violently and takes criticism disproportionately and reconsiders things that offend him: I have a watch, only my lonely love is revenge that is never free - I feel like a victim single, butCan never take responsibility for mistakes: Nobody knows what it's like to feel these feelings like I do And I blame you - He's full of anger - Nobody bites their anger that hard. No one can express my pain and sadness - He can't control his emotions and impulses and is very concerned about what people think of him: If I have a clenched fist, open it before I use it and I'll lose mine Cool Fool - He actually feels he needs people to protect him from himself, despite causing great harm to others without any real self-examination: If I swallow something bad stick your finger down my throat, if

I'm cold, give in me a blanket, keep me warm, let me wear your coat This interpretation is flagged as wrong. see any lyrics written from the perspective of a narcissistic person. Either way, this is a character who carries a heavy load of inner division, anger, and projection both ways. . . . .

Some forms of narcissism also cause severe distress to the narcissist themselves. An interesting aspect of the song is the part about "dreams are not as empty as his mind". Here dreams refer to illusions created by the projective factor of the narcissist's psyche. This factor usually creates a desire to be accepted by the world, just as a child receives the safety and warmth of a mother's womb, leading to disappointment and feelings of alienation. anonymous December 12, 2019 Report There has been a lot of clear and concise information about narcissism, specifically covert narcissism and sociopathic personality types, on the information superhighway known as the internet lately. It's there if anyone wants to check. It's absolutely chilling how, without using the knowledge now available, Pete Townsend transported the audience into the mind of a narcissist. His lyrics quite succinctly define the essential elements of covert narcissism. Ask anyone who has survived these types of people! report anonymous November 15, 2019 I totally agree with the interpretation that this is a person (probably Pete) dealing with alcoholism or other substance abuse issues. For those who don't know what it's like to live with an alcoholic, these lyrics fit perfectly with the mindset of an alcoholic (as I understand that mindset as a non-alcoholic spouseBeing an alcoholic is not just about "drinking too much". In this way, alcohol completely changes a person's behavior and especially how he reacts to those around him, even those he loves, often in a very painful way. An alcoholic can say really mean and hurtful things while drinking, leaving them feeling ashamed but helpless. Often the bad things they say to others are simply projecting their low self-esteem onto others. They suffer greatly when they realize how they have hurt others. I believe this song is a cry for help and an attempt to explain to an alcoholic what it means to personally deal with the terrible disease of alcoholism. Anonymous Report 2019 August 15 My ex once said to me when this song was on the radio, "I feel like this song is about me..." I wish I could ask him what he meant, but years later when he cheated on me, and I came out and put 2 and 2 together and I suspect he was sexually abused as a child/young teenager perhaps by his father and/or priest. He was definitely bipolar and he was a sociopath. Anonymous Report 2019 June 9 I have blue eyes and I know I'm a good person, but all my life I've been haunted by people who don't appreciate me, don't understand me and constantly want to tell me I'm wrong. When I tell the truth, I don't believe it. Constantly fighting to prove myself wrong. I always strive to make others better. My intention was misunderstood. I feel sad because I never feel appreciated. I'm considered bad because people don't like being told they can improve. My pain and misery are meaningless to those I have cared for all my life, and my concern for them is considered an empty conscience. This song is the story of my life. Anonymous report, 2019 January 8 Founder of Blue Eyes, very deep and very clearly visible. Happy new year! - Same person who commented on this song today, anonymous message in 2019. Some people like and some people don't like some people. That's life, we can't please everyone and we can't please everyone. Like you, I have been judged and not liked by everyone. I have sympathized with the villain more than once and I can't blame them because I'm no good myself. I try to be good, but sometimes I still go back to my old life. Never beat yourself up over itThoughts of you. Always be honest because people will understand you at some point. I have friends that I now understand why they said these things to me. I wish you a happy New Year! Peace be upon you - this page was searched mainly from 2013 to 2018 and this page from 1/1/19 to 08/01/19 Anonymous from January 7, 2019 wrote behind blue eyes about someone who is considered like a villain. I am in this position, I am considered a villain. It basically refers to a person who has been considered his whole life. So the lyrics "nobody knows what it is". This song reminds me of me. I've always been considered a villain. So much so that I wanted to kill myself. I thought if no one loved me and wanted me dead, I should die. This song reminded me of what I was facing. Behind the blue eyes says "I'm not a villain". ReflectionPoint November 29, 2018 Report While I tend to consider some renditions of the song, some of the others refer to the blue eyes in the title as a "major racial" reference and reverse racism, etc. A: Pete has blue eyes This reference is This reference is probably just a first person perspective. B: The blue sound of the word works better in the context of the song than brown, green, hazelnut brown, etc. It makes for better poetry. (Sing it in your head with a different color. You can do that, but it doesn't quite sound right, does it?) C: Blue is a description of the underlying emotion. This means that the song works perfectly regardless of the actual color of his eyes. "Behind sad eyes" is the metaphorical meaning of the title. Common sense here. Knowledge Report July 22, 2018 "Behind Blue Eyes", pure and simple, is anonymous below, an expression of shame and anger experienced by a young man who was sexually abused by an older gay family member. A few years ago when Pete was arrested, every line of this song is a reminder of that. When I swallow something, with a bad swallowing, put a finger in my throat. No one corresponds so harshly to his anger...? Pete was sexually abused by an older gay uncle, and every time he complained he was told he should always do it and ignored him so he wouldn't cover up for a member of the family. family. Isn't it ironic that the generators of such sadness are identified as "gay"? Anonymous March 14, 2018 Message This song has special meaning to me because it isHow many times have I felt in my life. I am an alcoholic and a drug addict and my actions have deeply hurt the people I love and who are the most concerned in my life. When you hurt the person that much, you are aware of their pain and that you are their cause. Rarely, however, does anyone wonder how a person who is in pain feels. It's just difficult to be empathetic or sympathetic to someone who is guilty. It's easy to think that a drug addict doesn't care about the consequences of their behavior, but: no one knows what it means to be a bad person to be a sad person to keep addiction. That's why I identify with: Nobody knows how to be hated, doomed to just tell a lie. You feel like everyone thinks you're some miserable son of a bitch who only cares about you else, who keeps hurting people and lying to people. But the truth is, addicts often have wonderful dreams about living a healthy, clean life, being a good husband and father, friend and employee. Life in active addiction is crazy and you feel so lonely for hours. But my dreams are not as empty as the conscience, I have hours, just a loneliness site 2 anonymous report in 2011. March 17th I must say that I am very surprised by what I see here, but again what I know, I'm old, but I always thought it was recovery from addiction (if I swallow something bad, stick your finger down your throat). I let me take the tablet (when my fist interrupts it while using it and lose myself) when I'm going to shoot with gunpowder, squeeze your fist to reveal the vein. It and losing your self control (if I'm shaking, give me a blanket to warm up, allow me to put on your coat), come to help me get tired. Classic Abstinence Symptoms All other lyrics are classic heavy feeling of addiction, hatred and self-destruction. Classics maybe a hate marked by other personality issues I don't know. All the members who had demons there look at Keith Moon and I know Townshend had addiction issues. I know they have the song's official meaning, but do you think he would publicly recognize such raw, distorted sentiments as his own anonymous name?3rd report 2011 is a song about being a lover of children. A man who is attracted to children but doesn't give in to their temptations because, like you, he knows it's wrong. This song speaks to me because I am the same. No one knows what it is (there aren't many) to be the bad guy (everyone says we are even when we're not) to be a sad person (to be told he's love who's wrong. to hide it hurts to be hurt alone) behind the blue eyes (no one can tell because he "doesn't look like a pedophile". No one knows what it means (it's scary that we are the most hated minority on earth) to only know how to tell lies ( lies to love who you are) but my dreams are not as empty as they seem my conscience (we can hide in our dreams and it's not bad for us, loving a child) I have hours, only lonely My love is revenge, it's never free (loving a child allows us to show ourselves that we're not bad, our revenge, but we can't tell anyone) No one knows what it's like to feel the way I do and I blame you (if S ie we understood each other we wouldn't have done it so badly) no one bites their anger (pain) so hard my pain and unhappiness (the thought of being found out) can't come , scares) w if my fist clenched it before I use it and lose my temper (don't let them get to it, we can't find it) if I smile tell me bad news I laugh and report like a fool (control) If I swallow something wrong, hold on to it into the throat (control of emotions is necessary so that we do not become a "child attack"). If I'm shivering, give me a blanket, warm me. Knowing what I do, this interpretation can be labeled as bad. see
