Orchestral piece by Edvard Grieg for other uses, see in the hall of King Mountain (disambiguation). “In the hall of the Mountain King” performed by the Orchestra Symphony Symphony Czech problems playing this file? See media help. “Nella hall of the Mountain King” (Norwegian: I Dovregubbens Hall, Lit.Åê ã~ ã” ‘in the hall of the man of Dovre’) is a piece of orchestral music composed by Edvard Grieg in 1875 as accidental music for the sixth scene of ACT 2 A Henrik Ibsen’s 1867 Play Peer Gynt. It was originally part of Opus 23, but was later extracted as the final piece of Gynt peer, suite no. 1, op. 46. “Its easily recognizable theme helped achieve iconic status in popular culture, where it was organized by many artists (see Grieg’s music in popular culture). The English translation of the name is not literal. Dovre is a mountainous region in Norway, and “GUBBE” translates to (old) man or husband. “GUBBE” is used along with its female counterpart “Kjering” to differentiate between male and female trolls, “Trolljervubbe” and “Trollkjerring.” In the game, Dovregubben is a king troll that peer Gynt invents in a fantasy. The two-sentence theme, written in the key of B minor, the piece is played as the character of the title peer gynt, in a dreamy fantasy, enters “Dovregubbens (The Troll Mountain King’s) Hall.” The introduction of the scene continues: “There is a large crowd of courtiers of trolls, gnomes and goblin. Doregubben sits on his throne, with a crown and a scepter, surrounded by his sons and relatives. Peer Gynt is standing in front of him. There’s a huge sturdy in the room.” The sung lines are the first lines in the scene. [1] [2] Grieg himself wrote, “For the Mountain King’s Hall I wrote something that so smells of cows, ultra-Norwegian, and ‘a-teself-be-enough-ness’ that I can’t bear to hear it, although I hope the irony will make itself felt. [3] The theme of “A Thyself ... quite “ã”” avoiding the implied commitment in the phrase “to your own true self” and simply doing enough ã” is central to equal the satire of Gynt, and the phrase is discussed by peer and the mountain king in the scene that follows the piece. The simple theme begins slowly and quietly in the lower registers of the Orchestra, played first by the cellos, basses and basses. After being declared, the main theme is thus very slightly modified with some different notes ascending, but breathes a perfect fifth (to the major key, the dominant key, but with sixth flattened) and played on different instruments and played on different instruments. The two Of instruments then move in and out of different octaves until the end “collide” one another at the same pitch. Time gradually turns up to a very early final, and e the music itself becomes stronger and more frenetic. Song text in Peer Gynt (The troll-cortiers): Slagt ham!
