It has been variously described as a science and as the art of justice. State-enforced laws can be made by a group legislature or by a single legislator, resulting in statutes; by the executive through decrees and regulations; or established by judges through precedent, usually in common law jurisdictions. Private individuals may create legally binding contracts, including arbitration agreements that adopt alternative ways of resolving disputes to standard court litigation. The creation of laws themselves may be influenced by a constitution, written or tacit, and the rights encoded therein. The law shapes politics, economics, history and society in various ways and serves as a mediator of relations between people.Legal systems vary between jurisdictions, with their differences analysed in comparative law. In civil law jurisdictions, a legislature or other central body codifies and consolidates the law. In common law systems, judges may make binding case law through precedent, although on occasion this may be overturned by a higher court or the legislature. Historically, religious law has influenced secular matters and is, as of the 21st century, still in use in some religious communities. Sharia law based on Islamic principles is used as the primary legal system in several countries, including Iran and Saudi Arabia.The scope of law can be divided into two domains. Public law concerns government and society, including constitutional law, administrative law, and criminal law. Private law deals with legal disputes between individuals and/or organisations in areas such as contracts, property, torts/delicts and commercial law. This distinction is stronger in civil law countries, particularly those with a separate system of administrative courts; by contrast, the public-private law divide is less pronounced in common law jurisdictions.Law provides a source of scholarly inquiry into legal history, philosophy, economic analysis and sociology. Law also raises important and complex issues concerning equality, fairness, and justice. When youre learning English, sometimes writing can feel a bit like solving puzzles. You have different pieces like spelling rules or exceptions and your job is to figure out how they fit together. Today, lets solve one specific puzzle: how do you spell the adverb form of legal?The correct spelling is legally. In English, when a word ends in y and is preceded by a consonant, to make an adverb we replace the y with i and add ly.For example, the adjective legal becomes the adverb legally. You would say, She was acting legally when she signed the document, meaning she followed the law.Understanding Basic Spelling RulesEnglish has a handful of rules that tell us how to form words correctly. You might already know the magic rule: if a word ends in y, and theres a consonant before the y, change the y to i and add es or ed or ly. Isnt that interesting? It helps you turn a noun like candy into an adjective like candied apples.Applying the Rule to LegalNow, lets apply this to our puzzle. The word legal ends in l which is a consonant, and just before that is an a which is a vowel. Since it doesnt end in y, we dont change it, we simply add -ly. The correct spelling is legally.Why is Legaly Incorrect?Have you ever typed something fast, maybe in a text or a note, and missed out a letter? Its pretty common, right? Legaly is a bit like that mistake. When were learning the rules, sometimes its easy to forget things like repeating the l before adding ly. But remember, practice makes perfect!Examples in SentencesUsing words correctly helps cement them in our minds. Heres how you can use legally: Is she legally allowed to drive this car? He needs to handle these documents legally. They were legally married in a lovely ceremony.What About Other Words?You might wonder if this rule works the same for all words ending with an l. The answer is yes! Think about final. It becomes finally. What about usual? It becomes usually. See the pattern?Understanding these patterns helps you navigate English better. Isnt it a bit like having a map when youre visiting a new city? It gives you confidence to wander and explore!Why Spelling MattersWhy do we even bother with spelling things correctly? Well, think of each correctly spelled word as a bridge. It helps people understand us better and connect with our ideas. When you spell words correctly, its easier for others to read your writing. Its like speaking clearly so everyone can understand your words. Practice TipsHeres a quick tip to practice. Whenever you learn a new rule, try to write sentences using that rule. Its like trying out a new recipe in your kitchen. The more you do it, the better youll get. Also, reading a lot helps. Yes, reading! When you see words used correctly in books, articles, or even on signs, its like someone is showing you a hint about how to spell. Over time, it gets easier. Just think of each new word as a new friend youre learning more about!Wondering if your memory is good enough to remember all these rules? Dont stress too much. It takes time, effort, and yes, sometimes making mistakes. But, each mistake is a little step forward in your learning. Its just like learning to ride a bike, a few wobbles and falls make the smooth rides even sweeter! Next time you write something, do a quick check. Ask yourself, Am I using this word correctly? Have I spelled it right? Being careful with your words shows that you respect your reader, and that you care about communicating well. Its just like dressing neatly for a special occasion it shows that the event is important to you.So, as you practice your English, keep these tips close to your heart. Write, read, and most importantly, enjoy the process. Its your hard work and curiosity that will make you better each day. And remember, no one learned everything in one go.
