

Android studio switch to dark theme

I'm not robot!

Dark theme is available in Android 10 (API level 29) and higher. It has many benefits: Can reduce power usage by a significant amount (depending on the device's screen technology). Improves visibility for users with low vision and those who are sensitive to bright light. Makes it easier for anyone to use a device in a low-light environment. Dark theme applies to both the Android system UI and apps running on the device. There are three ways to enable Dark theme in Android 10 (API level 29) and higher: Use the system setting (Settings -> Display -> Theme) to enable Dark theme. Use the Quick Settings tile to switch themes from the notification tray (once enabled). On Pixel devices, selecting the Battery Saver mode enables Dark theme at the same time. Other OEMs may or may not support this behavior. For instructions on applying a dark theme to web-based content using a WebView component, see Darken web content in WebView. Support Dark theme in your app in order to support Dark theme, you must set your app's theme (usually found in res/values/styles.xml) to inherit from a DayNight theme: You can also use MaterialComponents' dark theming: This ties the app's main theme to the system-controlled night mode and gives the app a default Dark theme (when it is enabled). Themes and styles Your themes and styles should avoid hard-coded colors or icons intended for use under a light theme. You should use theme attributes (preferred) or night-qualified resources instead. Here are the two most important theme attributes to know about: ?android:attr/textColorPrimary This is a general purpose text color. It is near-black in Light theme and near-white in Dark themes. It contains a disabled state. ?attr/colorControlNormal A general-purpose icon color. It contains a disabled state. We recommend using Material Design Components, since its color theming system (such as the theme attributes ?attr/colorSurface and ?attr/colorOnSurface) provides easy access to suitable colors. Of course, you can customize these attributes in your theme. Change themes in-app You might want to allow users to change the app's theme while the app is running. Your app can let the user choose between themes. The recommended options are: Light Dark System default (the recommended default option) Each of the options map directly to one of the AppCompatActivity.DayNight modes: To switch the theme, call AppCompatActivity.setDefaultNightMode(). Note: Starting with AppCompatActivity v1.1.0, setDefaultNightMode() automatically recreates any started activities. Force Dark Android 10 provides Force Dark, a feature for developers to quickly implement a Dark theme without explicitly setting a Day/Night theme, as described above. Force Dark analyzes each view of your light-themed app, and applies a dark theme automatically before it is drawn to the screen. Some developers use a mix of Force Dark and native implementation to cut down on the amount of time needed to implement Dark theme. Apps must opt-in to Force Dark by setting android:forceDarkAllowed="true" in the activity's theme. This attribute is set on all of the system and AndroidX provided light themes, such as Theme.Material.Light. When you use Force Dark, you should make sure to test your app thoroughly and exclude views as needed. If your app uses a dark theme (such as Theme.Material), Force Dark will not be applied. Similarly, if your app's theme inherits from a DayNight theme, Force Dark will not be applied, due to the automatic theme switching. Disable Force Dark on a view Force Dark can be controlled on specific views with the android:forceDarkAllowed layout attribute or with setForceDarkAllowed(). Web content For information on using dark themes in web-based content, see Darken web content in WebView. For an example of dark theme applied, see the WebView demo on GitHub. Best practices The following sections provide best practices for implementing dark themes. For UI surfaces that you display on the device but do not directly control, it is important to make sure that any views that you use reflect the host app's theme. Two good examples are notifications and launcher widgets. Notifications Use the system-provided notification templates (such as MessagingStyle). This means that the system is responsible for ensuring the correct view styling is applied. For launcher widgets, or if your app uses custom notification content views, it is important to make sure the content on both the Light and Dark themes. Common pitfalls to look out for: Assuming that the background color is always light Hardcoding text colors Setting a hardcoded background color, while using the default text color Using a drawable icon which is a static color In all of these cases, use appropriate theme attributes instead of hardcoded colors. Launch screens If your app has a custom launch screen, it may need to be modified so that it reflects the theme of the mockup. The color tool also has an Accessibility tab to let you know if your colors are clear enough to read when used with black or white text. Part of making your app more accessible is ensuring the color contrast is high enough: 4.5:1 or higher for small text, and 3.0:1 or higher for larger text. Read more about color contrast. For primaryColorVariant and secondaryColorVariant, you can pick either the light or dark variant suggested. Note: You can also use the Material palette generator to select a secondary color. You can choose a primary color, and it will suggest colors that are complementary, analogous, or triadic. Add the colors to your app Defining resources for colors makes it easier to consistently reuse the same colors in different parts of your app. In Android Studio, open colors.xml (app > res > values > colors.xml). After the existing colors, define a color resource named green using the value selected above, #1B5E20. #1B5E20 Continue defining resources for the other colors. Most of these are from the color tool. Note that the values for green_light and blue_light are different from what the tool shows; you'll use them in a later step. green #1B5E20 green_dark #003300 green_light #A5D6A7 blue #0288D1 blue_dark #005B9F blue_light #81D4FA There are already color resources defined for black and white, so you don't need to define those. The colors.xml file for your app should now look like this: #FFBB86FC #FF6200EE #FF3700B3 #FF03DAC5 #FF018786 #FF000000 #FFFFFF #1B5E20 #003300 #A5D6A7 #0288D1 #005B9F #81D4FA Use the colors in your theme Now that you have names for the colors you selected, it's time to use them in your theme. Open themes.xml (app > res > values > themes > themes.xml). Change colorPrimary to the primary color you selected, @color/green. Change colorPrimaryVariant to @color/green_dark. Change colorSecondary to @color/blue. Change colorSecondaryVariant to @color/blue_dark. Check that Text on P and Text on S are still white (#FFFFFF) and black (#000000). If you're using the color tool on your own and select other colors, you may need to define additional color resources. When you're done, the theme should look like this:
